Sioux Falls Federal Building 2011-Present Sioux Falls, SD

UNIT design studio has recently been selected for the exterior preservation and restoration of the Sioux Falls Federal Building built in 1895. The National Register of Historic Places project is used today as federal court house. The exterior, reminiscent of the HH Richardson Romanesque revival of the late 19th Century style remains a significant historic structure, originally built within the Sioux Territories.

UNIT's ongoing work includes all aspects of technical and historical renovation of this historic structure relating to the exterior elements and structure, balancing between the NPS, GSA and Federal Court's requirements for functionality and historic preservation. The project will continue through to 2012.
