Hanson Residence Winter Park, Colorado

Hanson Residence sits in the Colorado Rocky Mountains in the town of Fraser, near the Winter Park ski area. The design of this 5,000 square foot private residence focuses on sustainability by integrating both oak timber frames and passive solar design.

The location of the site not only allowed spectacular mountain views, but full solar access for highly efficient use of natural energy. All windows on the south elevation were properly sized to accommodate a 100% potential for passive solar design.

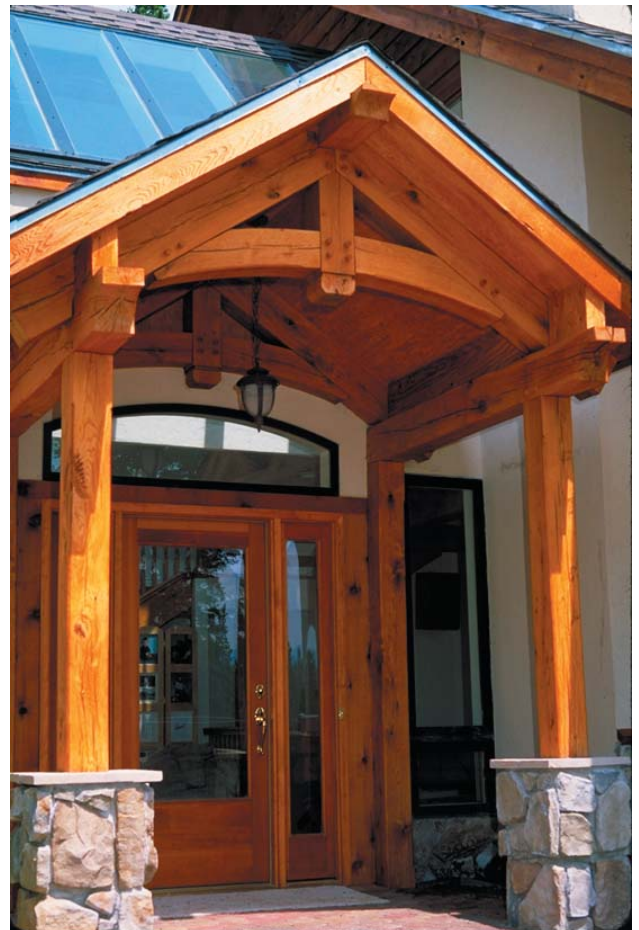

Appreciation for the surrounding environment is displayed through the interior and exterior features of fully exposed timber framing.

The rustic interior consists of suspended interior bridges, stairways and balconies, as well as large panels of glass windows, which provide stunning mountain panoramas.
